

For the urgent investigation into threats and assassination plans made against the Tupinambá people; for the guaranteed safety of the Tupinambá people; and for the immediate finalization of the ongoing process to demarcate the Tupinambá Indigenous Territory of Olivença (Bahia).

Open letter from researchers working with the Tupinambá people

February 13, 2019

At the end of January 2019, the Tupinambá people discovered and brought to light an intricate plan to eliminate indigenous leaders, designed by individuals and groups who oppose the demarcation of the Tupinambá Indigenous Territory of Olivença, in the south of Bahia. Seeking to assassinate Cacique Babau (Rosivaldo Ferreira da Silva) and some of his family members, including an adolescent girl, the plan would have been carried out with the participation of public power agents who had been participating in meetings organized to plan the attacks.

With a robust collection of evidence, including testimony and security camera images, the Tupinambá reported the plan in face-to-face meetings with officials from the state government of Bahia, the federal government, the Federal Public Ministry, international organizations, and human rights groups. The gravity of the case led to the publication of a news report in the Folha de São Paulo on February 10, 2019.

These events have taken place in a context influenced by, among other factors, recurring anti-indigenous declarations made by the president of the Republic, Jair Bolsonaro, and by the nomination of representatives from sectors who oppose indigenous rights to occupy specific positions that hold the authority to guarantee such rights. This scenario has been fertile ground for the invasion of indigenous lands, the assassination of leaders, and other grave crimes—as reported by the press and verified in the case of the Tupinambá.

The process to demarcate the Tupinambá Indigenous Territory of Olivença has already taken fifteen years. Every legal deadline established by Decree n° 1.775/1996 has been breached. As the General Assistant Attorney of the Republic, Antônio Carlos Bigonha, declared recently in the Tupinambá case, “the delay in signing a declaratory ordinance of a process that has met all legal and constitutional requirements worsens the situation in the region.” Also according to the Bigonha, “the Minister of Justice, Sérgio Moro, could sign [that ordinance] immediately.”

As professors and researchers from different disciplines, with ties to universities in Brazil and abroad, that, over many decades, have developed academic research projects and produced other types of scholarly work alongside the Tupinambá people, we wish once more to take a public stand on this grave state of affairs and demand:

1. Urgent investigation into the threats and assassination plans made against the Tupinambá people, with all parties involved being held appropriately accountable;

2.Immediate adoption of effective protective measures for the Tupinambá people, especially Cacique Babau (Rosivaldo Ferreira da Silva), any other individual determined to be a likely target, and all those who suffer threats;

3.That the Minister of Justice sign immediately the declaratory ordinance to finalize the demarcation of the Tupinambá Indigenous Territory of Olivença.

The body of our scientific work, which is available to the general public, documents in detail the plunder inflicted on indigenous peoples and the violation of their constitutionally guaranteed rights, as well as their resistance through the constant renewal of ways of life, collective identities, and projects established through a particular relationship with their territory. Based on years of research, we affirm that the immediate finalization of the administrative process to demarcate the Tupinambá Indigenous Territory of Olivença is the only way to guarantee the rights of indigenous and non-indigenous peoples, and to help to cease conflicts in the region.

André Augusto Bezerra, Doctor in Humanities and Rights (Diversity, Intolerance, and Diversity Studies/Universidade de São Paulo)

Ayra Tupinambá - Vanessa Rodrigues dos Santos, Geographer. MA Student in Ethnic and Racial Relations (Universidade Federal do Sul da Bahia)

Casé Angatu Xukuru Tupinambá - Carlos José Ferreira dos Santos, Doctor in History and the Culture of Architecture (Universidade de São Paulo); Professor (Departament of Philosophy and Human Sciences/Universidade Estadual de Santa Cruz and Graduate Program in Teaching and Ethnic and Racial Studies/ Universidade Federal do Sul da Bahia)

Cecilia McCallum, Doctor of Social Anthropology (University of London); Associate Professor and Graduate Coordinator, Department of Anthropology and Ethnography (Universidade Federal da Bahia)

Cinthia Creatini da Rocha, Doctor of Social Anthropology and Post-Doctoral Fellow in Social Anthropology (Universidade Federal de Santa Catarina)

Daniela Fernandes Alarcon, Doctoral Student in Social Anthropology (Museu Nacional/Universidade Federal do Rio de Janeiro)

Epaminondas Reis Alves, Historian; MA in Ethnic Relations and Contemporary Society (Universidade Estadual do Sudoeste da Bahia)

Erlon Fabio de Jesus Costa, MA in Sustainable Development alongside Indigenous Peoples and Lands (Universidade de Brasília); Specialist in Social Psychology (Universidade Estadual de Santa Cruz); Professor of the State and Municipal Network of Ilhéus

Ernenek Mejía Lara, Doctor of Social Anthropology (Universidade Estadual de Campinas); Post-Doctoral Fellow in Social Anthropology (Universidade Federal da Bahia)

Helen Catalina Ubinger, MA in Anthropology (Universidade Federal da Bahia); Doctoral Student in Society and Culture of the Amazon (Universidade Federal do Amazonas, New Social Cartography Project of the Amazon)

José Valdir Jesus de Santana, Doctor of Social Anthropology (Universidade Federal de São Carlos), Professor, Department of Basic and Instrumental Studies (Universidade Estadual do Sudoeste da Bahia)

Laila Thomaz Sandroni, Doctor of Social Sciences, Development, Agriculture, and Society (Universidade Federal Rural do Rio de Janeiro); Post-Doctoral Fellow in Applied Ecology (Escola Superior de Agricultura Luiz de Queiroz/Universidade de São Paul)

Larissa Santiago Hohenfeld, Historian. MA in Ethnic and African Studies (Universidade Federal da Bahia)

Luisa Elvira Belaunde Olschewski, Doctor in Social Anthropology (University of London); Adjunct Professor, Post-Graduate Program in Social Anthropology (Museu Nacional/Universidade Federal do Rio de Janeiro)

Marcelo da Silva Lins, Doctoral Student in History (Universidade Federal Rural do Rio de Janeiro); Assistant Professor, Department of Philosophy and Human Sciences (Universidade Estadual de Santa Cruz)

Mauricio Pinheiro, MA in History and Society (Universidade Estadual Paulista)

Nathalie Le Boulter Pavelic, Doctoral Student in Culture and Society (Universidade Federal da Bahia, dual degree program with the Interdisciplinary Institute of the Anthropology of Contemporary Society, Laboratory of the Anthropology of Institutions and Social Organizations/École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales)

Patricia Navarro de Almeida Couto, MA in Social Sciences with concentration in Anthropology (Universidade Federal da Bahia); Professor, Department of Applied Social Sciences (Universidade Estadual de Feira de Santana)

Ricardo Sallum Freire, Indigenous advocate and MA in Geography (Universidade Federal da Bahia)

Sirlândia Santana, Doctor in Social Sciences (Universidade Estadual do Sudoeste da Bahia)

Susana de Matos Viegas, Doctor of Anthropology (Universidade de Coimbra); Professor, Institute of Social Sciences (Universidade de Lisboa)

Taís Carvalho, MA in Culture and Society (Universidade Federal da Bahia)

Teresinha Marcis, Doctor in Social History (Universidade Federal da Bahia); Professor, Department of Philosophy and Human Sciences Humanas; Coordinator of the History Collegiate (Universidade Estadual de Santa Cruz)

Thais Brito, Doctoral Student in Social Anthropology (Universidade Federal da Bahia); Kurumin Cinema Festival

Ulla Macêdo, MA in Social Sciences with concentration in Anthropology (Universidade Federal da Bahia); Fundação Osvaldo Cru